POETRY.

Parlez Baz .- We have pleasure in appropriating the following beautiful lines from the "Louisville Journal." They purport to be from the pen, or rather from the heart, of Mr James G. Drake. PARLEZ BAS.

(Speak low!)

Parlez bas! The moon is up,
And o'er the sleepy throng

The mocking-birds high notes are heard,
In wild and witching song— No eye shall trace thy footsteps here, But fear thee not while love is near. Partez bas ! Though here we meet

In silence deep, alone,
No guilty thoughts disturb our souls,
Nor wish we fear to own.
Pure as the light you orb imparts, Shall be the meeting of our hearts. Parlez bas ! A genial breath

Their fragrance mingles with thy voice,
And holy joy is ours.

Parlex bas! and let each tone
Echo the fondness of mine own. Parlez bas! And now repeat
The vow those lips once made,
Mine is a love that cannot change,
A heart that ne'er betrayed.
O say that thou wilt love me still,

Through storm or sunshine, good or ill. Parlez bas ! I bless thy words The last that I may hear; Sweet on my brow thy breath I feel,

Upon my cheek thy tear. Now take thee to thy bed and rest, And be thou blest as I am blest.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26, 1835.

Cause and Effect .- The Baltimore Republican of the 21st ult., contains a very good article upon the outrages and violations of the law in different pars of the country which have occurred within the last few weeks, in which the spirit of misrule now abroad in the land is traced to the course pursued, and the measures recommended, by the advocates for the e-charter of the U.S. Bank. The violent language sed by the advocates of the Bank, and its editors-the unscrupulous invective they have both heaped upon the government-and the invocations they have addressed to the spirit of anarchy and misrule-have all combined to excite the public mind and to prepare the storm which has now burst upon the country. We are aware that this is a grave charge-too grave to be lightly made-too important to be inconsiderately urged-but we think no man who will call to mind the assertions and arguments of the Bank partizans, can help being convinced that it is founded in truth and justice. We do not say, nor do we think, that Mr Clay or Mr Webster, or any of the Bank presses, pursued the course they did with the view of producing such results-but they might have known, if they would but have reflected, that such was the inevitable tendency of their course. Invitations to acts of violence for any cause, are sure to meet with a latitudinarian construction, and to be, generally speaking, but the seeds of an universal commotion. We are indebted to the Republican for the collection of numerous extracts from Bank speeches and papers, in illustration of the fact that to the advocates of that institution are we indebted for those acts of violence which every good citizen regrets and condemns.

From the Philadelphia Herald January 1834 .- "We have said before, that there is a storm brewing. Unless Congress interfere, and save us, we say again, we will not be surprised to see the people taking care of their own rights in their own way"-and that way is the way they took at the "Tea party" in Boston, and afterwards at sundry other places, which, it is unnecessary, at present, to mention. It was a two-penny-tax on Tea, then, but it is liberty, united with rights which are vested, now."

"The editor of the Baltimore Chronicle, about the 20th of Jan. 1834, expressed the wish that the U. S. Senate

"Will refuse to pass any appropriation bill, until the public moneys were returned to the Treasury established by law," by which was meant the U. S. Bank; and about the middle of February the New York Commercial Advertiser expressed the wish, not only that the Senate should refuse to pass any appropriation bill, but that it should continue in session until the restoration was made.

A letter from the Washington Correspondent of the Richmond Compiler, dafed Feb. 16, 1834, said :-

"It is my sincere belief, sir, that we shall in a short time come to violence. My friends in the Northern cities tell me that, in their opinion, pistols will be flashed and dirks drawn in their streets, before the expiration of another month. It is well for the personal safety of the individuals composing the actual government, that they are in a small city, which is dependent on the government. In no commercial or independent city would they be safe for a moment. I see no relief from any quarter,-none present, none in prospect, none in expectancy. There must be a bloody revolution. For one, though a cool and considerate man, I confess I am ready to whet my knife."

About the 10th of March, the Philadelphia Herald

"We say in the face of the world, and with solemn reliance on the God of the Free, that this people are not excusable for remaining an hour longer, quiet, under the present state of Constitutional degradation, and of national and individual ruin. LET THE CRISIS

About the 28th of March the editor of the Richmond Whig said :-

"Who would not rather have a King and a gentleman for his master, than a ferocious and unlettered bully, and his hellish crew, the Kitchen Cabinet? A there be treason in these sentiments, make the most of it. A Henry the IV. under an avowed Monarchy, in preference to Jackson and Kendall, yet more despotic than he, under the mockery of a Republic.'

Mr. Clay, if we are not mistaken, declared upon the floor of Congress that we were in the "midst of a revolution," and Mr. Webster fathered the same sentiment at Baltimore, when he harrangued the mob on a Sunday.

It would be difficult to tell to what such things tend, if not to violence and bloodshed-to what they would be likely to lead, if not to the substitution or tow for the statute law.

To one who is willing to judge fairly and impartially, the evidences of public favor and approbation which have been so profusely bestowed upon the present administration, from the moment it first came into power to the present time, furnish abundant proof that its leading and general principles are such as meet the approbation of much the largest portion of the reflecting part of the community. We venture to say that no administration ever had to contend with more noisy or unscrupulous opponents, who notwithstanding the real paucity of their numbers, have contrived to keep up a perpetual stream of fault-finding and abuse. This opposition has always been under the control of defeated and expectant candidates for the Presidency, who have shown themselves ready to embrace any measures which promised even the most transitory success. We are not sure that their clamor and abuse have not been productive of great good, by stimulating the people to examine into the merits of the administration, and, consequently, to enter more warmly into its support. We think, indeed, that this is the case, for the strength of the administration party has increased with each succeeding year, and it is now more thoroughly irresistable than at any former period of its existence.

The Bangor Advertiser tells a good story of a Yankee who was refused a dinner at one of the down east tayerns, until he had shewn the landlord his pewter .--Boniface then did his best, and at the sound of the bell in walked the yankee, and taking a general survey of the table, turned to his host and said, " Mister, you've seed my money, and I've seed your dinnergood bye !"

P.S. We wonder if this was one of the taverns the Portland papers are bragging about so much. We know of an individual who called at one of them a year or two ago, and could not be accommodated with a chamber for his family, until the bar keeper had found out how long he wanted it-and whether any one else would take it for a longer time. He had almost impudence enough to ask the stranger how much he was willing to pay.

The Comic Almanack for 1836, informs us, among other things, that the Summer of next year will be the hottest ever known, as "the sun is to run very gate to Congress without opposition. low." The following is a sample of its anecdotes.

"An ill-looking fellow being asked how he could account for Nature's forming him so ugly, "Nature was not to blame," said he, for when I was two months old, Bynum; 3d, Ebenezer Pettigrew; 4th Jesse Speight; was considered the handsomest child in the neighboraway for another boy just to please a friend of hers, tine H. POSTSCRIPT.

A GREAT FIRE IN CHARLESTOWN.

A fire broke out in Charlestown about six o'clock last evening, which resulted in one of the most extensive conflagrations that has been witnessed in this section of the country, for many years. It originated, we tion of the country, for many years. It originated, we understandr in a sadler's shop, between the two bridges

Therefore, we, the inhabitants of Brighton, believing it to -a strong wind blowing from the South West at the time. The fire spread with great rapidity—and at a little past eight o'clock, as near as we could judge, the Square, Chamber street, Gill street, and Water street as far as, and including, Gray's wharf, was in a light blaze. At this time, the fire had approached so near the end of the old bridge as to render it impassible, and, the wind still continuing quite strong from the S. W. the flames were spreading with considerable rapidity, notwithstanding the exertions of the firemen. The prospect (9 o'clock) is that the fire will not yough the will be carried but a short distance in its rear. Half past nine .- The conflagration has reached its bounds, having destroyed about fifty buildings; it extended from the old Bridge to the Creek, toward the the Navy Yard, sweeping every thing before it, and on several rods. It is impossible to estimate the loss with any degree of accuracy-it could not have been less than 250 or $300,000. The streets were filled with furniture and goods of every description, and hundreds of houseless individuals are wandering about seeking shelter. The activity of the Firemen was very great, but the tide being low, it was difficult to obtain water, which, together with the combustible materials of which the buildings exposed were composed, being nearly all wood, rendered the flames unconquerable for more than two hours.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

Having been made acquainted with the medical qualities and witnessed the effects of "Dr Phelps' Arcanum," I feel much confidence in saying it is a preparation of medicine greatly superior to any thing of the kind, in curing those chronic diseases for which it is intended, and recommend it to invalids in preference to any other article whatever

My knowledge of the properties and operation of the "Arcanoum of Dr Phelps," justify me in saying that it is far superior to any depurative syrup with which I am acquainted. In the most obstinate and ambiguous descases, it displays effects pecultarly surprising. In those a flections that resist the skill of the physician, such as Rheuma tism, Syphilis, Scrofula, Ulcerations, and Discuses of the Skira, &c., I would recommend it as worthy of great confidence.

The Arcanum had two powerful competitors, swaim's Panace a, and Potter's Carloticon, which have been for years in circulation in this place.
